Practice General Internal Medicine in a new health care facility Live in a community of recreation and wonder

West Parry Sound Health Centre is seeking a fourth General Internist, or a Subspecialist with an interest in General Medicine to join our team. The health centre provides a wide range of hospital and community services to the area's 21,000 permanent residents and 100,000+ summer residents. Our health centre includes a 70-bed acute care facility with a 6 bed ICU.

The Internal Medicine Service currently staffs a closed ICU, and provides consultative services to the Emergency Room and general inpatient wards. We have diverse clinical interests as a group, with busy outpatient practices. We see a broad spectrum of clinical presentations, and have good subspecialist/tertiary support from Health Sciences North, as well as other colleagues further south. In addition to a broad range of clinical opportunities, there are ample teaching and research opportunities available through our affiliation with the Northern Ontario School of Medicine.

We enjoy a very collegial work environment.

Parry Sound has a Rurality Index for Ontario (RIO) score of 65 and new physicians are eligible for provincial incentive programs. We receive additional funding through the Northern Ontario Specialists Alternate Payment Program, as well as generous CME funding.

Recreational activities and cultural events in the community abound. Extensive trails are in place for snowmobiling, cross-country skiing, cycling, and hiking. Some of the best boating in the world takes place on the beautiful Georgian Bay amid the world's largest freshwater archipelago.
